

TO LAY CORNER STONE OF NEW SCHOOL

Elaborate Ceremonies To Mark Laying of Corner Stone of New Mokena Public School

The corner stone for the new $40,000 public school building at Mokena will be laid with elaborate ceremonies Saturday afternoon, October 27 at three o'clock. The school board, members of the Parent-Teachers Association and all the school children will participate in the ceremonies.

The new school building was voted on last April and the proposition carried by a big majority. Shortly afterward the school board, consisting of Ona E. McGovney, Elmer L. Cooper and Richard Hensel visited a number of the new school buildings in the vicinity of Chicago and Elgin and finally saw a number of designs as planned by Ralph Abell, a well known architect of school buildings with offices in Chicago and Elgin. Mr. Abell was engaged to design the new Mokena school which is one story in height, consists of four rooms, a large gymnasium, stage, and in fact will be modern in every way and will be a big asset to Mokena. The school will be equipped with indoor drinking fountains, toilets, spacious halls, plenty of light and excellent ventilation and heat.

County Superintendent of schools, August Maue of Joliet, himself a one time resident of this community will deliver the principal address. The Rev. Glen T. Beatty, pastor of the local M. E. church and Rev. W. J. Cramer, pastor of the St. John Evangelical church of Mokena will also participate in the program. It is understood there will be other features which have not been announced as yet.

The Shillinger Construction Company of Chicago are the general contractors and Theodore Swimmer is the superintendent in charge of construction.

A copper box will be placed in a hollow stone in the southwest corner of the building. In this box will be placed the names of all the children at present attending the Mokena Public School together with the names of the teachers, members of the school board and the members and officers of the Parent-Teachers Association and copies of the News-Bulletin, Joliet Herald-News and the Chicago Tribune in addition to other things.

The copper box has been made by the Mokena Hardware Company and will be sealed and then placed in the corner stone. President Elmer L. Cooper of the school board will seal the stone with cement.

The old school building now in use was erected in 1872 and was valued at $12,000 at that time. The contractor was James Easton. The building is 45x78 feet and two stories high. It has served the community well in its day. Hundreds of pupils have attended and graduated from this school, many of whom have made a mark in the world. Many teachers have taught in this school, some of whom are living and some have passed beyond in the march of the years. This building has been used as a meeting place for many community affairs. One of the interesting relics concerning this building is an old insurance policy and which will be placed in the corner stone. The policy was one of the Aetna Insurance Company forms and was issued in 1879 for $1500. It is signed by John Liess, this company's local agent at that time and who is still writing insurance and by Conrad Stoll and Robert H. Turner, directors, both of whom are dead.

The present board of education is as follows:

Mrs. Bertha Baur, noted woman worker of the Republican National Committee will speak to the ladies of Mokena and vicinity at the St. John Evangelical church parlors in Mokena Saturday afternoon, October 27 at 4 o'clock. She will also speak at a Republican Woman's Tea at the Joliet Chamber of Commerce at 2 o'clock the same afternoon. As the corner stone laying exercises of the new Mokena school will be over by the time the meeting is called, the ladies attending the exercises can go to the church parlors and hear Mrs. Baur. Mokena is honored by having such a noted woman as Mrs. Baur coming here. She is coming on the invitation of the Mokena Emmerson Republican Club.

Peotone Editor Predicts Defeat Of Bond Issue

The last few years has witnessed an alarming increase in the tax rates imposed upon the people for all kinds of state, county city and other local undertakings. The tax eaters have been busy thinking up new causes for which taxes must be levied and the people seemed eager to approve the propositions at the ballot box.

The tide is turning against any further increases in the tax burden. Evidence of this was shown in Chicago last spring when the people buried under an avalanche of votes nearly every bonding proposition submitted to them.

The voters of Joliet killed a bond issue for a new bridge on Van Buren street and on Tuesday of last week the Joliet electorate defeated a proposition to increase the city levy for the purpose of raising the salaries of the police, firemen and other city employees. The object of the increased levy was a worthy one and almost everybody predicted that it would be approved.

Two bond issues will be voted on at the election on the 6th of November. One of them is the proposed issue of $1,750,000 in bonds to build 58 miles of cement roads in the county.

The other is the $20,000,000 bond issue proposed by the sportsmen's organizations for the purchase of game and fish preserves by the state.

Our prediction is that both of these measures will meet defeat at the ballot box—Peotone Vedette.

Republican Rally At Palos Nov. 2

Palos Park will have a Republican Rally on Friday evening, Nov. 2nd at the Palos Park Improvement Club House. The following speakers will be on the program: Edward Litsinger, Hon. E. W. Sprouhl, Judge John A. Swanson and others. The meeting will start at 8 p. m. Every one is cordially invited. Frank C. Mahaffay, Republican committeeman will be in charge of the meeting.

Street Markers Placed In Tinley

Tinley Park is putting on city airs now by having all the streets named and properly marked. The progressive Lions Club purchased and had erected 28 street markers. Names of streets are on an aluminum sign, the letters being in black. These signs are surmounted with the Lions Club emblem. The markers have been placed at all street intersections.

This improvement is a note worthy one and stamps the community as being a progressive one.

The matter of house numbering is to be worked on next. Signs showing distances from nearby cities to Tinley Park are also being considered.

Will County S. S. Convention Success

The Will County Council of Religious Education convention was held in the First Presbyterian church, Joliet last Sunday afternoon and evening and was far beyond the fondest hopes of its promoters in point of success. Over 117 persons from all over the county registered in the afternoon. Marley community church was the best represented having 19 members present.

A bountiful supper was served by the Ladies of the Presbyterian church. A fine program was put on at the evening service.

Ralph Carr of Naperville was re-elected president and all the other officers were re-elected.

REP. RALLY AT MOKENA SAT.

The final rousing touch to the present political campaign in Mokena will be put on Saturday night of this week when the Mokena Emmerson Republican Club will put on a big rally. Speakers are being sent here from Chicago by the Republican state central committee. A very fine program is being arranged for. Everybody come. The rally starts at 7:30 p. m., at St. John's church.

New R. N. A. Home At Rock Island Is Dedicated

The new Supreme Office Building of the Royal Neighbors of America was dedicated at Rock Island, Illinois on Wednesday, October 17th.

This building is indeed beautiful, a mingling of art and practical construction and must be seen to be appreciated.

The dedication ceremonies were formally conducted in the morning and the building was thrown open to visitors for inspection during the afternoon hours.

A banquet for the district deputies was given in the evening by the executive council. Mrs. Albert Maue of Mokena was in attendance at these gatherings, returning Thursday and reports a splendid time.

Thursday the Will County R. N. A. convention was held at Manhattan. Those present from Mokena were Mrs. Albert Maue, from Joliet Mrs. Stella Daly, and Mrs. Mary Arnold, Supreme Oracle from Rock Island. A supper was served and the R. N. A. work was put on in the evening.

The Mokena camp is showing a fine growth in membership having a total of 221 members in which is included the Juvenile department with 86 members.

Robbers Visit Combs Garage At Tinley

Thieves have been busy again at Tinley Park. The Combs garage was broken into Sunday night, entrance being gained by forcing a rear door. A radio set, a shot gun, revolver, some change, tubes, etc., were taken. A number of other articles were packed up but were left behind which makes it appear that the robbers were frightened away. Some of the loot was dropped in the yard in the back of the garage. A number of finger print marks were discovered on some of the goods and a finger print expert from Chicago came out Monday and took pictures of the prints. About three years ago the same garage was robbed but the robbers were later apprehended and convicted and Mr. Combs succeeded in recovering the goods stolen at that time. One of the robbers was the son of a politician.

Thursday and Saturday nights thieves visited the John G. Poorman poultry farm and stole a number of chickens.

Vote "No" On Game Bond Issue

Illinois now has an authorized enough to buy every foot of real estate to buy every foot of real estate in a dozen cities the size of Decatur. There is authorized $160,000,000 for hard roads; $65,000,000 for the soldiers bonus; and $20,000,000 for waterways—in these three items a staggering total of $245,000,000 to rest upon the back of the taxpayers of the state. Interest alone upon this sum, at the rate of 4½ per cent will amount to more than $30,000 a day.

Not all of this amount is outstanding, but bonds for the full amount authorized will, of course, be issued as the money is required. In addition, there will be calls upon the taxpayers for money, from one source or another, with which to complete the system of roads planned when the $100,000,000 bond issue was presented.

Most, and perhaps all, of the money represented by this enormous state debt has been, or will be, put to desirable purposes, all of which had the approval of the voters. Nevertheless, with an obligation of this size already assumed, it is not surprising to find the head of the Illinois Agriculture association advising (continued on back page)

Congressman Elliot Sprouhl Addresses First Political Rally Held in Tinley in 15 years

The first Republican Rally held in Tinley Park in the past 15 years, was held Tuesday evening in the Saenger Hall under the auspices of the Bremen Township Republican Club and was attended by several hundred people. Norman Schoeneck township. He and other were in the blockade to the starving women instrumental in making this rally possible.

The meeting was called to order by R. J. Hug, who presided as chairman of the evening. The first speaker of the evening was Congressman Elliott Sprouhl of the third congressional district, embracing this section.

Congressman Sprouhl spoke chiefly for Hoover and the Republican ticket and incidentally, for his own candidacy for re-election. He has served eight years in Washington as congressman. He reviewed briefly the history of the Republican party which has been one of 72 years of prosperity, he declared.

The speaker said he was in Europe when the world war broke out saw the great work Herbert Hoover accomplished in getting thousands of stranded Americans home. He said it was some job.

In addition, he pointed out the great task Hoover performed in feeding the thousands of starving women and children of Belgium. Germany had laid a successful embargo on all food stuffs so that the blockade of Belgium was complete. Hoover went before the Imperial German government and asked them to permit food to pass thru the blockade to the starving women and children, and his request was granted and 600 tons of food were rushed thru. After the war, he saved the women and children of Germany from starvation. During the great Mississippi flood in our own country, he had the problem of feeding and housing 700,000 homeless people and he accomplished the job.

Congressman Sprouhl said, "I have no fault to find with Herbert Hoover. He is for you, for his country and prosperity." He said that England had offered Hoover a knighthood and $1,000,000 a year, but Hoover turned down the offer saying, "No, I am an American."

He further showed that the Democrats had run the country into a debt of twenty-six billion, five hundred millions of dollars, and the Republican administration has reduced this debt eight billions of dollars. He referred to the Cleveland administration and hard times.

Mr. Sprouhl reviewed his own record, saying he came to America from Canada 48 years ago. He told of his work to get better wages for postal employees. On February 1, 1925, he introduced a bill which eventually increased the salary of postal employees $300 a year. He also worked for a ten per cent increase over the day rate for the postal employees working nights. The bill was passed but the president vetoed it, but Congressman Sprouhl succeeded in getting his bill passed over the president's veto.

He also has done much to aid disabled ex-service men of which over 3600 cases have been handled.

He also spoke for Emmerson, saying the latter is true to his people, himself and his God. He said that the American people are not going to be fooled, and that the women especially have registered as never before. He urged the voters to vote the Republican ticket straight on election day and received a hearty applause. He declared if the voters went for him as strong on election day, he was sure to be re-elected.

The next speaker was Miller E. Meyers, who has been connected with national agricultural work for years. He stressed the farm problem saying, it is the most important problem in America, as everyone depends on the returns from the soil, and that 30 per cent of manufactured products are purchased by the agricultural sections of the country. The farm problem is as complex as that of manufacturing. He stressed the need of a protective tariff to keep out foreign products that would compete with American farm surpluses. He stated that Hoover favors a federal farm board to place agriculture on a profitable basis. He said Hoover knows the world, whereas Smith only knows New York. Hoover went thru college, Smith learned English "foist on the sidewalks of New York."

George H. Weidling, candidate for sheriff was next introduced. He said he came from German ancestry and was proud of it. His ancestors always maintained that honesty was the foundation of all their transactions with human kind. He was born in Cassel, Germany in 1871. He came to America to better his condition. He went to school in Germany scions of blue blood, but never knew them to be real men. He also spoke for Hoover and said that his own relatives in Germany had received some of the food that Hoover sent to feed the starving after the war.

Mr. Weidling reviewed his work in police circles in Chicago. After several years on the police force Weidling was transferred to the traffic squad where he served for many years, rising to be sergeant, lieutenant and captain. He was one of the organizers of the mounted police detail in Chicago. He declared he stood for efficient law enforcement in Cook County, stamping out of vice and crime, protection of lives and homes and that by reason of this stand and his past experience he is asking to be elected sheriff of Cook County.

Senator Louis Wright, who is managing the Emmerson campaign down state spoke for the state ticket. He predicted that Emmerson will be elected governor by 500,000 (continued on back page)

Touches that Add Style to Dresses

By MAE MARTIN

It's amazing to see how faded, out-of-style dresses can be transformed by a few buttons, a little braid and the quick magic of home dyeing or tinting. You don't need any experience to tint or dye successfully if you are sure to use true, fadeless Diamond Dyes. Tinting with them is easy as bluing, and dyeing takes just a little more time to "set" the colors. They never give things that re-dyed look which comes from using inferior dyes. Insist on Diamond Dyes and save disappointment. Over 20 million packages used a year.

My new 64-page illustrated book, "Color Craft," gives hundreds of money-saving hints for renewing clothes and draperies. It's Free. Write for it, now, to Mae Martin, Dept. G-143, Diamond Dyes, Burlington Vermont.

Autoists Fight Gates

Automobile drivers of Australia are tired of climbing in and out of their cars in order to open and close road gates to keep cattle at home. In that land of many cattle it has been necessary to fence across many of the country roads. A scheme to have at each gate an excavation, with tracks across for cars, but so constructed that stock cannot cross, is meeting with high favor. No provision will be made for horses and carriages, because they are considered by ranches as being "relies of the dim and distant past."

When Food Sours

Lots of folks who think they have "indigestion" have only an acid condition which could be corrected in five or ten minutes. An effective anti-acid like Phillips Milk of Magnesia soon restores digestion to normal.

Phillips does away with all that sourness and gas right after meals. It prevents the distress so apt to occur two hours after eating. What a pleasant preparation to take! And how good it is for the system! Unlike a burning dose of soda—which is but temporary relief at best—Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

Next time a hearty meal, or too rich a diet has brought on the least discomfort, try—

The RETURN of ANTHONY TRENT

by WYNDHAM MARTYN

COPYRIGHT BY BARS & HOPKINS

W.N.U. SERVICE

"I don't think there'll be any need to," Trent returned. "I'm not a simple and reckless optimist. It means I know my man."

Had there been anyone to observe Trent as he telephoned to Mr. Hill a little after midnight, that rare quality—hesitancy—might have been noticed in one who was rarely in doubt and always quick to act. Mr. Hill's voice came back almost instantly.

"You've seen that diamond for the last time," said Mr. Hill.

"What do you mean?" Trent demanded.

"Simply that a cable was dispatched to his royal highness late this afternoon that a messenger was bringing the Nizam's diamond to him as fast as an airplane and the Mauretania could accomplish the trip. What you ask has been arranged and you'll have to be at my office tomorrow morning at ten. Good-by—and good luck to you both."

Victory! Trent walked to the hotel window and looked over the city now growing still. The same restful quiet was stealing over him. How curiously things worked out, he reflected. Life seemed a matter of adjustments, compromises, equations, logical and satisfying when one understood them.

The appointment at Mr. Hill's office, his interview with members of another department, and the final triumph caused him to lose the noon train.

Only a few minutes were left of the forty-eight hours when he entered his apartment. Mademoiselle Dupin, already dressed for going out, was waiting impatiently.

"You were just going?" he demanded, looking at the clock. "You wouldn't have given me five minutes' grace?"

"Mrs. Kinney has secured a position for me, and I have a train to catch."

"Sewing?" he asked.

"I am to teach French and music to some children. I have been very fortunate."

"From your point of view, perhaps. Mademoiselle Dupin, you can't go just yet; your class must wait. I have a great deal to talk about."

"But the train," she protested. "It is to Greenwich I go."

"Greenwich has an admirable train service; take another."

She could not understand his mood. Although his words were peremptory, he was looking at her with a smile. How, she wondered, passionately, could he smile at her when she was trying to go where she might be able to forget him?

"You are going to teach other people's children because you think that is the only way to obtain peace of mind. You won't succeed that way. You may change your place of abode but you can't forget your dread of the police any more in Greenwich than you did in Deal Beach."

"I would rather do that than what you suggest," she said, her head held high. "If I were to take even a little stolen money my last chance of living honestly would be gone. I am even more sorry for you than for myself. I thought you were in earnest. You have so many talents that it is tragic you should go back to that life."

"And so you won't shake hands when you leave me?"

"Monsieur," she cried, "what use would that be? Our ways lie so far apart. I am resolved to work for what I need. It will not be easy, but I shall do it. It is possible I may starve, but I will not steal. Is there nothing I can say to influence you? You tell me you have lost your money. Well, it was generously spent, and I shall never be happy until I can pay you back what I have cost. You tell yourself that you will win a competence and then give up this life. That will bring you to ruin. It is the reef upon which you will be wrecked."

"I believe that, too," he said meditatively. "I wouldn't care to risk it again."

"But you will not need to," she said, with something of scorn in her voice, "you have the Nizam's diamond."

He smiled at her in the frank, boyish fashion she had seen in him only once or twice.

"I've lost it," he said.

"Lost it?" she repeated.

"Let us say exchanged it." His face became graver. "You must listen to me very carefully. Can you imagine that I, Anthony Trent, who has been what you know only too well, should have put all the Allied governments under obligations to me? It's true, nevertheless. What I did was of a nature so secret that it could not be published. I received no reward from my government. I wasn't officially thanked. The only thing that I got from it was the friendship of our ambassador to St. James' and a sort of promise that if ever I were in a tight place I had something to trade with. I never dared ask him just why he should imagine I might ever need such help. I've just come back from Washington, Mademoiselle Dupin."

"I do not see how that concerns me," she murmured.

"You will," he retorted. "The man I went to see was a cabinet officer. When I last knew him he was our ambassador to England. I reminded him of that veiled promise. I told him, frankly, I'd come to make a deal with him. I said I would give him back a certain historic diamond stolen from a visiting royalty several years ago if all the warrants against the woman who took it were quashed. He wanted to know how I could be sure that this woman would not do the same sort of thing again. He doubted if people of that sort could be relied upon."

"And what did you say?" Mademoiselle Dupin cried, eagerly.

"I told him I had put her to the supreme test and that she had come through."

"How do you mean—a test?" she exclaimed.

"My offer to have the diamond cut and share the proceeds with you."

"I am bewildered," she cried. "I cannot understand yet. If you spoke as you did to test me, then you have not gone back to the old life?"

"Never again," he told her.

"And I have doubted you. I am ashamed."

"You hadn't any alternative," he declared. "The main thing for you to understand is that the warrants against you have been quashed. The vast machinery that had set itself to enmesh you has been stopped. In the United States, at all events, you are free from arrest for what you did."

"Answer me this, please," she said anxiously. "Can you go to the cabinet officer if anything is discovered about you in future?"

"That," he said evasively, "will have to be considered when the time arrives."

She shook her head.

"I see it very clearly now," she said. "You have given me what would have saved you. How can I thank you for that? It is impossible. One thanks for the little courtesies of life. I am overwhelmed!"

She covered her face with her gloved hands. She was free. Through all the broad land there were no police empowered to recognize and arrest her.

"I haven't told you the truth, always," Anthony Trent said. "I have plenty of money. I'm not ruined in anything but hope."

She smiled for the first time, and there were tears in her eyes. The clock struck the hour.

"There goes my train to Greenwich," she said.

"Aren't you sorry to hear I am bankrupt?" he asked.

"But only of hope," she answered. "That is not serious. It springs eternal, one is told."

He smiled a little ruefully as he looked down at her.

"You don't even want to hear what hopes they are," he complained. "You are not making it easy."

"What hopes are they?" she said softly.

Suddenly he knelt by the side of her chair.

"Vera," he whispered, "I love you. It was because of that I had to put you to that test. Forgive me. Look at me, my dear, I cannot bear this silence."

"What would you have me say?" There was something caressing in her voice which set his heart beating madly. "That I love you? That I could say, gladly. But if I did, would you believe me?"

[THE END.]

Ink Blot Spelt Ruin for Engineering Firm

A big British engineering firm put a bid for building a great bridge for a foreign government. The head of the business spent six months in getting out plans. His bid was accepted, the material bought in great quantities, men engaged, and machinery built.

A time limit was set for the commencement and finish of the bridge, and one day the chief was sitting at his desk perfecting his plans and making sure of the smallest details, when he accidentally upset an inkpot and drowned his most important papers in a black sea.

In a fever of anxiety he tried to reconstruct his plans from stray notes. It was impossible, and he then cabled the foreign government begging for more time. This was refused and the contract repudiated. The loss drove the firm into bankruptcy.

Lesson for October 28

PAUL'S LAST JOURNEY TO JERUSALEM

LESSON TEXT—Acts 20:1-21:17.

GOLDEN TEXT—Remember the words of the Lord Jesus how he said, it is more blessed to give than to receive.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Tells His Friends Good-by.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Our Pastor Does for Us.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Paul, Shepherd of the Churches.

I.—Paul's Visit to Greece and Miletus (20:1-16).

Two incidents marked this trip:

1. The Jews laid wait for him (vv. 1-5). This plot obliged him to retrace his steps through Macedonia instead of choosing a more rapid sea voyage.
2. Fellowshiping with the disciples at Troas (vv. 6-16). He met with them around the table of the Lord and spoke words of encouragement. While preaching here, Eutychus in a deep sleep, fell from a window and was killed. Paul restored his life, thus giving to the disciples a sign of divine power which was greatly needed at that time.

II. Paul's Farewell to the Ephesian Elders (20:17-38).

1. Review of his three years' ministry (vv. 18-21). (1) The spirit of his ministry (v. 19). He was humble, tender and faithful in spite of the many trials which befell him. (2) The faithfulness of his ministry (vv. 20-21). He made known unto them everything which was of profit, taught them both in public and in private. He neglected no class, Jews or Greeks. He was impartial in all his ministry. (3) The theme of his ministry (v. 21). Repentance and faith. Men and women need to repent of their sins and believe on the Lord Jesus Christ.

2. The present state of things (vv. 22-27). Having reviewed his ministry, he now points out clearly, (1) His immediate purpose was to go to Jerusalem (v. 22). (2) Bonds and afflictions were lying across his path (v. 23). Despite these he went forward with undaunted courage, knowing that God was leading him. (3) His fixed purpose (v. 24). He was determined to complete his ministry at whatever cost—even giving up his life. (4) His consciousness of obligation—discharged (vv. 25-27). Knowing that they should see his face no more, he called them to record that he had not shunned to declare the whole counsel of God, therefore was free from the blood of all men.

3. His charge to the elders (vv. 28-35). (1) The ground of (v. 28). The flock for which they must care was purchased by the precious blood of Jesus and they had received their commission from the Lord. (2) The impending evils (vv. 29, 30). False teachers would arise from their own number. Grievous wolves would devour the flock. The most deadly foes of the church are those ministers and Sunday-school teachers who are unfaithful to their trust. (3) Incentives to faithfulness (vv. 31-35). His own example of watching night and day for three years is held up before them.

III. Paul Tarrying Seven Days at Tyre (21:1-6).

His destination was Jerusalem. He was pressing thitherward with all speed, but on account of the unloading of the ship he was obliged to wait at Tyre for seven days. During this delay he searched out the disciples who lived in that city. While here certain disciples said Paul should not go to Jerusalem. The information which these disciples received by the Spirit was doubtless the same as that given to Agabus (vv. 10, 11). Agabus told exactly what the Spirit said, which sets right what the Tyrian disciples seemed to say. We should give heed to prophesying, but should prove their utterances. Let all who claim to speak with the Holy Spirit give the exact words so that they can be subjected to legitimate tests. The same Spirit which showed to these disciples that suffering awaited Paul, revealed unto him the same suffering and sent him forward into it.

IV. Paul Tarrying in Philip's House (vv. 7-14).

Resuming their journey they paused briefly at Ptolemais to greet the brethren there, after which they went to Caesarea. Here they took up their abode with Philip who had so successfully wrought in the early days of the church. His four daughters doubtless are mentioned to show that the Spirit's gifts are not confined to one sex.

V. Paul at Jerusalem (vv. 15-17).

The brethren at Jerusalem gladly received him and his companions. Paul's lodging place was with an old disciple.

Champion is the better spark plug because it has an exclusive sili-manite insulator specially treated to withstand the much higher temperatures of the modern high-compression engine. Also a new patented solid copper gasket-seal that remains absolutely gas-tight under high compression. Special analysis electrodes which assure a fixed spark-gap under all driving conditions.

Let's keep what we've got!

American standards of living are the highest in the world—and steadily improving.

American wages are by far the highest in the world — and steadily advancing.

American workers have the shortest hours in the world—and they are steadily becoming less.

American homes have more conveniences, more comforts, and more luxuries than any other homes in the world.

Americans own more automobiles, wear better clothes, have more amusements and more plentiful food than the citizens of any other country in the world.

Hold Herbert Hoover on the Job!

"Real wages and standards of living of our labor have improved more during the past seven and a half years of Republican rule than during any similar period in the history of this or any other country"— says Herbert Hoover—and he knows—for, as Secretary of Commerce for Calvin Coolidge, he more than any other individual directed the business policies which made it so!

Our National progress has been built upon time-tested Republican policies—not untried and doubtful experiments. WHY CHANGE NOW?

Republican tariff protection has increased the comfort and happiness of every American citizen—man and woman—housewife and clerk—worker and farmer—merchant and manufacturer.

Republican restricted immigration has protected American wage-earners from a flood of cheap labor that would lower wages and cause unemployment.

Republican export policies have increased our foreign sales of American surplus industrial and agricultural products from $3,750,000,000 in 1922 to $4,840,000,000 in 1927—over a billion dollars increase—the means of livelihood for more than two million American families.

Why trade such proven benefits for a phantom glass of beer?

Under able management we can confidently expect these proved Republican policies to produce even greater prosperity in the future.

LET'S ELECT AS PRESIDENT AMERICA'S BEST BUSINESS ADMINISTRATOR—HERBERT HOOVER—AND KEEP OUR JOBS AND OUR PROSPERITY.

Prosperity didn't "just happen"

As shown by Herbert Hoover's statements:

Every man has a right to ask of us whether the United States is a better place for him, his wife and his children to live in, because the Republican Party has conducted the government for nearly eight years. Every woman has a right to ask whether her life, her home, her man's job, her hopes, her happiness, will be better assured by the continuance of the Republican Party in power.

Acceptance Speech, August 11, 1928.

Higher Wages

... the average of real wages is higher today than ever before. And the arduous hours of labor have decreased. We can easily prove this. As a standard of comparison, let us take the purchasing power of wages in 1913 or before the war. In purchasing power we consider both the dollars and the cost of living. Taking this standard we shall find that real wages at the height of the war inflation were about 30 per cent over 1913. Despite the great after-war slump they have risen until today they are over 50 per cent greater than before the war. Viewed in another way, while the cost of living today is about 60 points on the index above pre-war, wages are 127 above. Parallel with this increase in real wages the average hours of labor have steadily decreased.

Moreover, our real wages and our standards of living are the highest in the world. And I am again speaking of the real buying power of wages.

Newark Speech, September 17, 1928.

High Standard of Living

Our workers with their average weekly wages can today buy two and often three times more bread and butter than any wage earner of Europe. At one time we demanded for our workers a "full dinner pail." We have now gone far beyond that conception. Today we demand larger comfort and greater participation in life and leisure.

Most of all, I like to remember what this progress has meant to America's children. The portal of their opportunity has been ever widening. While our population has grown but 8 per cent we have increased by 11 per cent the number of children in our grade schools, by 66 per cent the number in our high schools, and by 75 per cent the number in our institutions of higher learning.

Acceptance Speech, August 11, 1928.

More Jobs and More Wages

On any calculation our exports have increased by over one billion dollars during the past seven years. This is an increase of 41 per cent since 1922 and an increase of 58 per cent over pre-war.

It is no accident which has brought about this unique situation in the United States. It is not chance that has brought this added employment for American workmen, and added markets for American farmers. Things like that don't happen.

More than two million families in the United States earn their living today producing goods for export, and another million families earn their living in the manufacture of raw materials which we import in exchange for our exports. This increase in exports has brought a living to 500,000 families. This means more than statistics. It means higher standards of living—more jobs make more wages. Foreign trade is no artificial stimulant to employment. Its development is a vital contribution to the welfare of the American workman and the American merchant and the American farmer. I propose that we shall continue this service to our people.

Newark Speech, September 17, 1928.

Cooperation Promised

I have already stated the position of the Republican Party in positive support of free collective bargaining. I have stated that it is necessary to impose restrictions on the excessive use of injunctions. It is my desire and the desire of every good citizen to ameliorate the cause of industrial conflict, to build toward that true cooperation which must be the foundation of common action for the common welfare. The first requisite to less conflict is full employment. By full employment we are steadily reducing conflict and loss.

Newark Speech, September 17, 1928.

One of the oldest and perhaps the noblest of human aspirations has been the abolition of poverty. By poverty I mean the grinding of undernourishment, cold, and ignorance and fear of old age of those who have the will to work. We in America today are nearer to the final triumph over poverty than ever before in the history of any land. The poorhouse is vanishing from among us. We have not yet reached the goal but given a chance to go forward with the policies of the last eight years, and we shall soon with the help of God be in sight of the day when poverty will be banished from this nation. There is no guarantee against poverty equal to a job for every man. That is the primary purpose of the economic policies we advocate.

Having earned my living with my own hands, I can not have other than the greatest sympathy with the aspirations of those who toil. It has been my good fortune during the past 12 years to have received the co-operation of Labor in many directions and in the promotion of many public purposes.

Acceptance Speech, August 11, 1928.

Avoid Disaster

At such a time as this a change in national policies involves not — as some may lightly think — only a choice between different roads by either of which we may go forward, but a question also as to whether we may not be taking the wrong road and moving backward. The measure of our national prosperity, of our stability, of our hope of future progress at this time is the measure of what we may risk through a change in present policies. More than once in our national history a change in policies in a time of advancement has been quickly followed by a turn toward disaster.

Dairymen to Place Milk Supply on A Sound Basis

Consumers, distributors and producers who make up Chicago's Milk industry are soon to put their milk supply upon a sound basis if plans now maturing are carried out. These plans have for their basis arbitration of prices and all differences arising as between producers and distributors and should insure to the consumer an adequate supply of milk of the very finest quality at reasonable prices.

In the past, organized producers and distributors upon failing to agree have precipitated a strike by farmers which would demoralize the industry and large quantities of milk of unknown origin and sanitation have been foisted upon Chicago consumers. The Pure Milk Association in fostering a plan for arbitration have not lost sight of the fact that it is within their power to deliver milk to dealers at a fixed price regardless of consequences.

The Pure Milk Association, a co-operative organization of dairymen now supplying the bulk of Chicago's fine milk supply from tuberculin tested cows, has since its origin constantly endeavored to deliver to the consumer through existing distributors the very finest quality of milk. Producers' deliveries are made in such a manner that distributors weigh it and test it for butter fat fifteen days after the end of the month pay to farmers a price fixed by distributors in Chicago.

When selling milk cooperatively, producers ask for the right to supervise these weights and tests and jointly agree with distributors upon the price to be paid to producers. So far as the larger dealers are concerned these requests have been ignored, hence the clamor for arbitration.

A milk marketing committee is being formed to give those interested a full hearing and one of the chief duties of the committee will be to appoint an arbitrator or a board of arbitration for the industry. The interests most vitally affected who will be asked to send representatives to make up this committee are: The consumers, distributors of milk, producers of milk, Health and Sanitation, Tuberculosis Irradiation Forces, Chicago Association of Commerce, Union Labor Organizations and the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Invitations to the committee meeting which was held Friday afternoon at the Stevens Hotel were issued to the following persons: John J. Lintner, Federal Inspector in charge of tuberculosis irradiation; Samuel H. Thompson, President of the American Farm Bureau Federation; Frank Kullman, President of the Illinois Milk Dealers Association; Otto P. Black, Business Manager of the Chicago Milk Deal Association; William R. Dawes, President of the Chicago Association of Commerce; John Fitzpatrick, President of the Chicago Federation of Labor; Arnold Kegel, Commissioner of Health; S. J. Standard, Director of Agriculture State of Illinois; Mrs. Leeds Mitchell, Chairman Association of Housekeeping Centers; Mrs. Wilbur E. Fribley, President of Chicago Housewives League and Chairman of American Home Department of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Constant Church Hopkins, Former Chairman of American Home Department of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Herbert W. Whitten, President of Parent-Teachers Association; Mrs. Edward D. Lowenthal, President of Chicago Women's Aid Association; Mrs. W. Norman Graham, Chairman of Living Costs Committee of Illinois League of Women Voters.

This same committee will undoubtedly initiate a survey of costs through a qualified economist. It has been well demonstrated on other organized markets that when the industry is put upon a proper basis, the interested parties could then devote their interests to increase quality and stabilization of supplies.

Award Prizes For Fair Poster

Andre Wilquin of Paris, winner of the fourth prize-$150- in the international poster contest conducted by the Chicago World's Fair re the first prize of $300 in the special contest held at the Art Institute for the poster receiving the largest popular vote from the public.

The poster which proved most popular with the public shows a cowboy mounted upon a rearing gray horse's hoof, is a silhouette of part of Chicago's skyline.

This poster, together with those that won the prizes in the centennial's official contest, are now on exhibition in the windows of the First National Bank. According to an announcement today by Chaum-McCormick, chairman of the poster contest committee, they will remain there until October 27, thus giving the public a chance to see whether they agree with the judges who awarded the prizes, or the public which would have awarded the first prize of $1,500 to Mr. Wilquin.

Mr. Wilquin is the only foreign contestant who received a prize in the competition, William P. Welsh, of 19 East Pearson street, winning first prize and the third one, which amounted to $250; Fred Good, 843 Buckingham Place, 75 East Wacker drive, winning the fifth prize-$100.

Mrs. Henry Ford Calls Hoover Choice of the Nation's Women

Wife of Automobile Manufacturer Says Issues of Campaign Are the Most Important Since Universal Suffrage.

Mrs. Henry Ford believes that most American women who love their homes and families will vote for Herbert Hoover in November.

So firmly convinced is Mrs. Ford that the issue of this year's presidential election is "of exceptional importance to women" that she decided to express her views in the first interview on politics she has ever granted.

"The issue is beyond politics," she declared in her home in Dearborn, Michigan, to a representative of the Women's National Committee for Hoover of which Mrs. F. Louis Slade is chairman.

"I shall vote for Mr. Hoover and I believe most home-loving women will achievement and by his of life of fulfilling the ideals which women cherish."

It was not a desire to enter the arena of politics which prompted her to declare her support for Hoover.

Not Politician

"I am not a politician," she remarked, "I helped to the best of my ability in the fight to get the vote. Since we have had the vote, I have always been interested in politics but I have never participated in any direct personal activities in that direction."

"We are for Hoover because we like the kind of work he has already done. His achievement in helping the Mississippi flood sufferers was remarkable, considering the shortness of time. He has done lots of other admirable things."

"We women are tremendously interested in legislation which relates to children or anything to do with the home. We are interested in proper legislation and getting the proper men to put it through. Mr. Hoover seems to be the right sort of man."

"Mrs. Hoover's early life and Mr. Hoover's in the old farm state of Iowa and on their present fine practical farm in California has helped them both to maintain a deep insight into farm conditions. Mr. Hoover realizes that it is of primary importance that life on the farms should be on the highest possible plane."

"Mr. Hoover will be doing a great thing if he succeeds in making the farm a better place to live on. He will earn the gratitude of thousands of women if he gives families on the farms the same sort of chance to lead a true good American life as most city families already have."

"This, you see, is outside of politics. Politics is too big a subject to discuss in a few minutes. This is true Americanism."

do likewise because he more than any other candidate seems interested in the problems of women and of the home."

So far as women, generally, are concerned, she explained, the basic issue of the election this year is closely connected with Mr. Hoover's unusual interest in their special concerns. In this sense, home-loving women throughout the land and particularly on the farms have a personal stake in November's battle of the ballot boxes.

"Mr. Hoover," Mrs. Ford continued, "seems to me to be the type of man who would do more than talk about helping in such important matters as social legislation."

"Never since women have had the vote has any presidential candidate given such convincing promise not by his words alone but by his record of

WIRE COMPANIES MOVE TO USE BELL FACILITIES

Western Union and Postal Enter Into Important Contracts With A. T. & T. Co.

The simultaneous transmission of telephone and telegraph messages over the same wires, on a nationwide scale, will be the result of far-reaching arrangements recently consummated between the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and two telegraph companies: the Western Union Telegraph Company and the Postal Telegraph and Cable Corporation. A series of non-exclusive contracts entered into with each of these telegraph companies will insure the development of electrical communications along lines made possible by the latest devices and methods developed by the Bell System research experts. By these arrangements the users of electrical communications will receive the benefit of many advantages but the telephone and telegraph companies will maintain complete independence of each other.

One of the new contracts makes the long distance telephone lines available for the transmission of telegraph messages handled by these two telegraph companies.

Further economies in the utilization of telegraph lines will be made possible under another of the contracts which provides that the telegraph companies may lease apparatus developed in the Bell Telephone Laboratories, by which a single pair of telegraph wires may be made, under certain conditions, to serve as several telegraph channels.

Still another of this series of contracts permits the two telegraph companies the use of the telephone company's telephoto system for the transmission of facsimile messages between cities in which stations for the transmission of pictures by wire are maintained.

Under these contracts the telegraph companies also have the use of certain developments which have been worked out by telephone engineers that are of particular practical value to the telegraph business. In addition to the devices for increasing the message capacity of telegraph lines and for the simultaneous transmission of telegraph messages over telephone lines without interfering with the use of the latter for telephone purposes, the Bell Telephone Laboratories have worked out improvements which have been applied to submarine telegraph cables, resulting in a large increase in the capacity of the ocean cables.

NEW CIRCUITS FOR PORTLAND

Because of the increased number of Long Distance telephone calls out of Portland, Me., three additional direct circuits to New York have been installed, making in all a total of seven such direct circuits. An average of about 2,000 toll calls a day is now made in Portland, of which about 35% go to Boston.

The people of this country complete over 3,000,000 telephone toll conversations daily.

CHICAGO AND DENVER OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

Celebrate Twenty Years of Long Distance Telephone Service Between Two Cities

Chicago and Denver celebrated the other day the twentieth anniversary of the first telephone conversation between those cities. Today, Chicago and Denver not only can talk to any city or town in the United States, but they can also converse as easily with Mexico, Canada and Cuba and with several foreign countries including Great Britain, Holland, Germany, Belgium, Switzerland, France, Norway, Denmark and Sweden.

When the first conversation took place between Denver and Chicago just twenty years ago, it required several hours to arrange for the talk which was held between Mayor Speer and Mayor Busse. To make themselves audible to each other, both had to speak loudly. Their conversation attracted wide attention at the time, but since Mayor Speer talked to Mayor Busse on that occasion, 22,000,000 additional telephones have been installed in the world, and it is now possible to talk by telephone from any part of the United States to any other part of the country and to many foreign countries.

TELEPHOTOGRAPHS FAR OUTSTRIP AIR EXPRESS

When the Western Air Express made its initial passenger flight from Los Angeles to San Francisco this year, pictures were taken of the passengers as a group just before the plane took off. Three hours later, when the plane arrived in San Francisco and the passengers disembarked, they were each presented with copies of the pictures that had been taken at the time of the hop-off at Los Angeles. The pictures had been sent by telephoto and there had been ample time to have them developed and taken to Mills Field to greet the passengers on their arrival, as it requires only seven and one-half minutes for the actual transmission of the pictures over telephone wires.

OPERATOR'S BRAVERY SAVES BURNING TOWN

A $30,000 fire which recently destroyed a portion of the town of Lafayette, Cal., gave Miss Marie Michaut, telephone operator at that place, the opportunity to show "the stuff she was made of." The fire started at the Lafayette Hotel and threatened the Lafayette exchange. While she was endeavoring to summon aid from surrounding towns, the heat and smoke became so terrific that the telephone operator fainted at her post, but it was, in part, due to her valiant work that the town was saved from total destruction. During the height of the fire a 250-gallon distillate tank exploded in the rear of the hotel and the fire from this added also to the danger of Miss Michaut in her efforts to serve the public.

The United States has about 60 per cent of the world's telephones. Germany comes next with about 9 per cent, Great Britain next with 5 per cent and Canada next with about 4 per cent. No other single country has as much as 3 per cent of the total number of telephones in the world.

German Singing Society to Observe Diamond Jubilee

A memorable day in German singing society history in Cook county is set for Sunday, October 28 when the Blue Island Liederkranz celebrates its diamond jubilee at Eagles hall, Grove and Henry streets, Blue Island. This Liederkranz, founded in 1853, is the oldest organization of its kind in the midwest. Assisting in the day's events which continue from 3 p. m. until midnight will be the Waldeck singing society and the Junger Maenner Chor (young men's chorus). A special added feature will be the appearance, from 7 to 8 p. m. of the Eiche Turnverein, noted gymnasts of Roseland which won high honors in Germany this summer.

The complete chorus contains 120 voices, and will be directed by H. Kornemann. Soloists include Madame Laura Von der Licht, former leading soprano of the San Carlo Opera Co. and Glynn Elliott, a famous tenor. The Waldeck and Junger Maenner chor, composed of singers from various parts of Chicago, will have special parts.

Germanic groups and other lovers of good music in Chicago and the south suburbs are making plans to attend the affair. It is announced that the customs of old times, such as serving supper during the affair, will be observed. There will be plenty of good food, like onion sausage, sauerkraut and coffee and the renewing of old friendships.

Eight residents of the then tiny Blue Island formed the Liederkranz in 1853 and the singing society reaches its 75th anniversary with a proud record of men devoted to good music and the organization invites residents of the surrounding territory to plan to spend the day in Blue Island, Sunday, October 28.

Banker Found Guilty of Violating Stock Quarantine

J. A. Hamilton, a Marissa banker, financier and farmer was found guilty last week, by a jury in the St. Clair county circuit court of a livestock quarantine violation, as charged by the Illinois department of agriculture. Hilmer C. Lindauer, states attorney of St. Clair county, in the prosecution of the case, had the assistance of Assistant Attorney General Merrill F. Wehmhoff, who prepared the evidence for the state department of agriculture and assisted in its presentation to the jury.

Evidence introduced by witnesses for the prosecution, representing the Illinois department of agriculture brought out that in December, 1925, with the knowledge of the defendant, Hamilton, the regulation tuberculin test was made on Hamilton's herd of cattle, on his farm near Marissa, and that two, reacting to the test, were branded as tubercular. Witnesses further testified that instructions were duly issued to the effect that the tubercular cattle, unless sold for slaughter, must be kept segregated from the animals that the tests did not pronounce tubercular.

Hamilton's failure, after repeated warnings by representatives of the state department of agriculture, to keep the branded cattle separated from the others was established by the witnesses for the prosecution. In August, 1927, according to the testimony, representatives of the department of agriculture visiting the Hamilton farm, found the two cattle that had been branded as tubercular among a herd of other cattle. A quarantine upon the entire herd, then established by the department of agriculture and violated by the defendant on September 14, 1927, in the sale of one bull calf to an East St. Louis commission merchant, formed the basis of the charge on which the jury brought in its verdict.

The act whereon the case was prosecuted, as cited by the representative of the Attorney General's office, Wehmhoff, is entitled "An act to revise the law in relation to the suppression and prevention of the spread of contagious and infectious diseases among domestic animals, effective since July 1, 1909."

The court, as yet, has not pronounced the penalty.

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR RECORDER OF DEEDS

The Welfare Association of the Recorder's Office of Cook County, an organization comprising all the employees of the Recorder's Office and formed for the purpose of relieving distress and caring for the sick and needy of that office, ask the voters of Cook County to consider carefully the following facts concerning the election of a Recorder of Deeds on November 6th.

For the last five years the office of the Recorder of Deeds has returned a profit on earned fees to the taxpayers of Cook County of over $400,000.00 annually or more than $2,000,000.00 in all. This two million dollars profit made by the Recorder's Office has meant a decrease of two million dollars in general taxation. There is not a taxpayer in Cook County who has not reaped the benefit of the efficiency in the Recorder's Office.

To obtain that two million dollars saving a trained, efficient organization has been necessary. Under Joseph F. Haas that organization was built up until delegations from all over the United States came daily to see how the work was performed.

John W. Jaranowski has pledged himself publicly to retain that organization. A change in that organization means decreased efficiency. Decreased efficiency means a loss in profits and perhaps changing the office from an asset of the taxpayers to a liability. It means higher general taxes. This can be prevented and the present profit maintained each year by electing John W. Jaranowski as Recorder of Deeds.

We know John W. Jaranowski and we believe in him. He is an experienced business man who has made a success in private business. An inexperienced man, no matter how honest his intentions, can produce disastrous results in the Recorder's Office.

We who constitute the working force of the Recorder's Office personally appeal to every voter to cast his or her vote for John W. Jaranowski for Recorder of Deeds at the coming election.

Announcing The New INTERNATIONAL SIX-SPEED SPECIAL

The Only Speed Truck of heavy-duty design with 6 speeds forward and 2 reverse

ALL over the country truck users have said for years, "Show me a small heavy-duty truck for compact, heavy loads, to look and go like a snappy speed truck, with frame and springs to stand all kinds of punishment, and with a gear reduction so I can use the engine power down to the last ounce when I'm caught heavy loaded in hard going."

We didn't have such a truck—nobody else did. But International Harvester engineers began work on it two years ago. Now we are ready with the "Six-Speed Special," a sturdy job built for Speed and Power, and sold at a low price that will surprise you.

The feature of the "Six-Speed Special" is the 2-speed rear axle. Built into this small and sturdy International chassis is an extra low range ordinarily found only in the high-priced heavy-duty trucks. Every part of the truck measures up to this tremendous power range. The reliable engine is a remarkable fuel saver, quick in pick-up, a perfected speed truck engine in every detail. The 6-inch-deep frame and the long rear springs, all the chassis members, in fact, are strictly heavy-duty throughout.

Sections to which the "Six-Speed Special" was released six months ago are taking this truck in solid trainloads. You will know why when you see and drive the truck. We want to demonstrate it fully for you on the road. Come in or phone us.

THIS VIEW of the new "Six-Speed Special" chassis shows the exclusive 2-speed rear axle and a close-up of the gears. The gears are shown in low reduction, the drive in this position being through the countershaft gears at the right. This provides three extra low speeds ranging down to 3 1/2 miles an hour, with ten times as much pulling power as in "high-high" speed. For regular driving, a shift of the axle-control lever at the driver's right changes to direct drive, providing 35 miles an hour with the same easy engine speed. This two-speed rear axle converts extra speed into greater pulling power, or the greater pulling power into extra speed, as conditions demand.

New Book On Hoover Written By Genius

In these days when practically everything you see in print is a stereotype of what's been published before on the same subject, and books in their various classes are all, whether fiction, biography or history, written in the "manner" which chances to be the fashion of the age, it is certainly refreshing to come across a book that is actually unique in method and original in point of view.

All the more remarkable is this exception to the rule when it is found to be a book of politics—perfectly practical, not at all above the level of the famous "man in the street", and yet a long, long distance ahead of the solemn traditional guff commonly vended as staple for stump speaking and party appeal.

Samuel Crowther, author of a new book entitled "The Presidency vs. Hoover," is a genius. He has done something new. What is genius but that?

The author waves his writing wand and sets up a trial court. The Presidency needs an occupant. It demands a mighty good one. The demand is so high that it creates a presumption against any man who is suggested for the office. The automatic charge against him is that he is not big enough for such a place. The burden of proof to the contrary is on the applicant—or on his friends.

And Mr. Crowther uses up half his book in the role of attorney for the prosecution. After looking the country over, he fixes his gaze upon the White House, shows what a tremendous obligation toward his country and his fellow citizens any man in the Presidency must carry and discharge, and traces the long lines of influence reaching out from the seat of government along which the President of the United States may affect for better or worse the peace and well-being not only of his fellow citizens but largely of the populace of the world. It all makes a showing of the potentiality of the American Presidency which gets a little awesome before the author has finished.

Then at the middle of the book the author changes roles. He goes over to the defense. Standing side by side with Mr. Hoover, he follows through his previous analysis and shows point by point how the Republican nominee in the present campaign measures up to the high stipulations which he has just established for a capable President of the United States. He counts little or nothing on conventional talents for political leadership—except brains, integrity, disinterestedness and courage, the elemental virtues that never grow old. But spellbinding and adroit party strategy and masterful bossing of the political machine are not named among Mr. Crowther's requisites nor discovered in his analysis of Mr. Hoover.

Senator Walsh's Tribute

Hooverizing Statute Books

Hoover induced paving brick manufacturers to reduce standard sizes from sixty-six to five; eliminated seventy or seventy-four sizes of beds. It would make a lawyer shudder to think what he might do with the statute books.

Merely a Ratification

Herbert Hoover's popularity is growing at a rate that forecasts another Republican tidal wave in November. Mr. Hoover's quiet dignity and reserve and lack of political bombast has already won for him the confidence of the nation. The election will be merely in the nature of a ratification.—Lynn (N. Y.) # A Party of Achievement

THE Republican Party has a remarkable record of achievement. Nation and state have progressed and prospered under Republican rule.

Constructive Republican leadership in Illinois for more than 70 years—during which time there have been but two Democratic administrations—has won for this State an enviable position among the most progressive states of the Union.

The nominees of the party this year were selected at a primary in which more than 1,660,000 Republican voters participated. They were chosen because of their well-known honesty, ability and experience. Under their guidance Illinois will go forward with long strides during the coming four years.

They are pledged—

To hasten the construction of the bond issue system of roads and to undertake the working out of a plan for the surfacing of secondary roads, thus extending the benefits of paved highways to thousands of farms and small communities.

To apply business efficiency in highway construction and other public works.

To work out a sound, just and economic reform of the taxing system, in order to relieve homes, farms and other visible property of the unequal burden they now bear.

To cooperate in every way possible with agricultural interests for improvement of the condition of the farmer and to assist in securing national farm relief legislation.

To maintain a helpful attitude toward industry and to favor legislation for the protection of wage earners and the improvement of conditions under which they work.

To assist the coal mining industry by demanding the removal of the unfair differential on Illinois coal.

To extend and improve the charitable institutions and maintain the highest standards for the care and treatment of helpless wards of the state, free from spoils politics.

To insist upon regulation and management of public utilities in the interest of the public which they serve.

To complete the construction of the Lakes-to-the-Gulf Waterway and to urge the building of a waterway connecting Chicago with the Atlantic ocean through the great lakes.

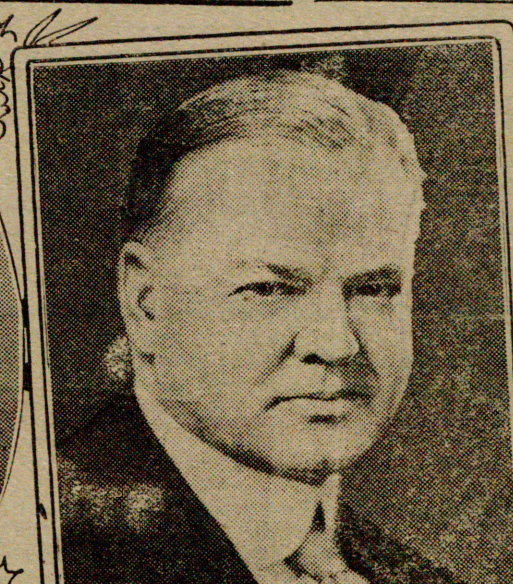

These and other pledges are all summed up in the one promise of efficient and economic state government.

Help Illinois by putting a cross in the Republican circle on Tuesday, November 6.

The First Lady of the Land

MRS. HOOVER

MRS. SMITH

MRS. ROOSEVELT

MRS. COOLIDGE

MRS. LINCOLN

MRS. MADISON

MRS. PRESTON (CLEVELAND)

MARtha WASHINGTON

By LOUISE M. COMSTOCK

WHEN Mrs. Herbert Hoover or Mrs. Al Smith sets up her domestic menage in the White House next March, she will do it according to customs established by 32 predecessors women of unusual personalities and talents who have molded to its present form the glamorous role of First Lady of the Land.

Love, romance, adventure, success and failure have come to them while mistresses of the nation's first home. Three of them, Letitia Christian Tyler, Caroline Scott Harrison and Ellen Axson Wilson died there; three more, Julia Gardner Tyler, Frances Folsom Cleveland and Edith Galt Wilson, by marrying men already in office, came to the White House as brides. Only two of our Presidents were bachelors when inaugurated, a proportion which shows them to be no exception to the rest of humanity in this particular respect. They were James Buchanan and Grover Cleveland, and Mr. Cleveland remained single only a year after his term began. Three Presidents were widowers when they took the oath of office and to daughters or sisters fell the responsibilities of First Lady of the Land.

Martha Washington, the first to hold this position, had no White House in which to entertain the diplomats and foreign guests of the new Republic, but the elaborate formality of the receptions, levees and musicales held in the temporary Presidential residence at Philadelphia set a definite social tradition. "Lady" Washington was a widow when she married the famous general, the mother of two children, and she brought him a $100,000 estate which helped make him the richest colonist in his part of the country. She is described as a quiet, unassuming woman, a good mother and a charming hostess, who held "court" with her idolized husband with ease and grace in spite of the lavish ceremony the times demanded.

It was thus to Abigail Smith Adams, wife of the second President of the United States, that fell the distinction of being the first mistress of the White House. She was introduced to her new abode on a bleak November day in 1800. Behind her lay a tortuous stage-coach journey over the miles of mud and wilderness which lay between her and her luxurious Philadelphia home. And before her—well, read what that staid and brilliant woman wrote her sister a little later:

"I arrived about one o'clock at this place, known by the name of the City, and the name is all you can call so, as I expected to find it a new country, with houses scattered over a space of ten miles and trees and stumps in plenty with a castle of a house—so I found it. The President's house is in a beautiful situation, in front of which is the Potomac. . . . I have been to Georgetown. . . . It is the dirtiest hole I ever saw for a place of any trade or respectability of inhabitants. . . . This house is twice as large as our meeting house. I believe the great hall is as big. I am sure it is twice as long. Cut your coat according to your cloth—but this house is built for ages to come!"

Mrs. Adams was compelled to endure embryonic Washington only three months, for President Jefferson moved in the next March. Jefferson was a widower and affairs at the "Castle" were ordered by his two daughters and by the vivacious and popular Dolly Madison, at that time wife of the secretary of state. For 16 years, while Jefferson and her husband were President, Mrs. Madison built to colorful dignity the social life of the new White House; for over 50 years she held undisputed sway over Washington society. She was not handsome; it has even been said that, though brought up in the Quaker faith, she rouged, took snuff and played cards for high stakes. But, according to one of her biographers, this daughter of South Carolina "is believed to have made a greater contribution to the social life of the country than any other woman who had the honor of living in the White House."

Though Dolly Madison was twenty-one years younger than her distinguished husband, they lived together happily for forty-two years. When he died at Montpelier, his widow returned to Washington and though then nearly seventy and in straitened circumstances, she made her little house opposite Lafayette square, now the home of the Cosmos club, a magnetic center of social life. Her death in 1849, when she was seventy-seven, was mourned by the entire capital.

Her immediate successors, though perhaps less well known, each left the stamp of her personality upon the social regime of the White House. There was Elizabeth Monroe, a quiet, intellectual woman of stately bearing, and Louisa Johnson Adams, who, though born abroad, educated in foreign courts and "a person far beyond the average of her generation," was prevented by ill health from continuing the festivities initiated by Dolly Madison. Though Rachel Jackson died, perhaps of a broken heart, some months before "Old Hickory" was inaugurated and though she was much maligned during the stormy campaign which preceded his election, his passionate devotion to her memory was responsible for momentous events during his administration, though social life at the White House was actually in the hands of her sister-in-law, Mrs. A. J. Donelson. And it was Angelica Singleton, his daughter-in-law and a charming belle of the South, who presided over official dinners for President Van Buren, a widower.

Letitia Tyler, made First Lady of the Land by the death of President Harrison only a few months after his inauguration, died in the White House. President Tyler met the woman who was to be his second wife, Julia Gardner of New York, in story book fashion. They were brought together by the death of her father, who was killed in an explosion on the Potomac and whose body was brought to the White House immediately after the accident.

The brilliant activity with which the new Mrs. Tyler brought her husband's administration to a close ended abruptly with the entrance of Sarah Childress Polk, a beauty of the dark Spanish type with a regal manner, whose strict religious beliefs caused her to banish dancing and the serving of refreshments from White House functions. Margaret Smith Taylor undertook the duties of First Lady of the Land reluctantly, resenting the demands this new honor made upon the husband she had already seen through the hazards of a spectacular career as Indian fighter. Consequently, so it is said, she sat quietly knitting and smoking a favorite pipe while her daughter, Mrs. William Wallace Bliss, saw to the installation of new lighting fixtures and furniture in the Presidential mansion and entertained for her father.

Abigail Powers Fillmore, a self-educated woman and a school teacher before her marriage, was another who, this time because of lameness, put the burden of playing hostess on a daughter. And Jane Means Pierce entered the important role under a cloud of grief for the death of her thirteen-year-old son killed in a railroad accident, and though a competent if somewhat detached hostess, she had such a dislike of politics that they were never discussed in the President's home while she was around!

During the administration of the bachelor President, James Buchanan, his ravishing niece, Harriet Lane Johnston, one of the most beautiful and popular of the women who have held that position, played First Lady of the Land and brought to the historic mansion once again a period of high festivity. Then came Mary Todd Lincoln, "a pleasant-faced, cheerful woman, who would be satisfactory in her place," whose life at the Capital, darkened by the death of her son Willie and the President's assassination, could not have been a very happy one. Her successor, Eliza McCord Johnson, though she taught her husband to read and write, was an invalid while she lived in Washington and was forced to relinquish the duties of her exalted position to a daughter.

A new social era, as well as new furniture and decorations, entered the White House when Julia Dent Grant became its mistress. A talent for entertaining and unfailing energy enabled her to promote a continuous round of gala functions, among them the brilliant marriage of her daughter Nellie, one of her four children. Lucy Webb Hayes, also an excellent hostess, modified the nature of White House entertainment by banishing the serving of intoxicating liquors. And the custom of lavish and efficient entertainment established by those two was ably continued by Mrs. John E. McElroy, sister of President Arthur, and successor to Lucretia Garfield, whose term as First Lady was cut short by her husband's assassination.

Though President Cleveland entered office a bachelor, his marriage to Francis Folsom soon after gave Washington one of the most popular hostesses it has ever known. The young Mrs. Cleveland was the idol of the women of her generation, many of whom still remember the dresses she wore at her famous public receptions. Caroline Scott Harrison, an unusual woman, skilled in painting and music and the first president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, died in the White House, leaving her responsibilities to a daughter, Mrs. McKee.

At the close of President McKinley's administration, a quiet one socially, due to the ill health of his wife, Ida Saxton McKinley, Edith Carow Roosevelt, another woman still fondly remembered, became First Lady of the Land. She was an engaging, intelligent person, keenly interested in the activities of her famous husband and such a devoted mother to her five children that she has been called the "American Cornelia." The best remembered occasion of her life in the historic mansion is the marriage of Alice Roosevelt to Nicholas Longworth, present speaker of the house.

With Helen Herron Taft, the new interests of modern woman were introduced into the White House. Mrs. Taft was active in civic enterprise and was the founder of the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra. Her successor, Edith Axson Wilson, died during her husband's first term in office and was followed by Edith Galt Wilson, mistress of the nation's first home through the troublous times of the World War. Florence Kling Harding was again a modern woman with modern ideas, being the first President's wife with the power to vote.

To the demands of a most elaborate social program Grace Goodhue Coolidge, who after seven years as First Lady of the Land yields her position next March, has lent a charm and tact that have endeared her to the American people. She is a graduate of the University of Vermont and before her marriage taught in a school for the deaf in Northampton. Through the death of one of her two sons, Calvin, Jr., the long illness of her mother and the death of her husband's father, through wearing years of continuous publicity, she has maintained a calm, gracious dignity, and been always a true First Lady of the Land.

Great Orators Among Red Men of America

Standing erect, with eyes flaming with enthusiastic ardor, and a mind laboring under an agony of thought, the Indian was a most impressive orator, writes Elijah M. Haines in "The American Indian." When he spoke before his assembled nation on some great subject he showed most manifestly that he was feeling an awful responsibility in what he attempted to advocate in behalf of his people.

Caleb Atwater, one of the United States commissioners who made a treaty with various Indian tribes for the purchase of large tracts of Illinois and Wisconsin in August, 1829, said the Indian's oratorical presence was the finest to be seen. "His eloquence abounds with figures from every subject which nature presents to his eye. When he touches upon the subject of the sale of his country his eye flashes fire, his whole soul is in every word, in every look, in every gesture. He raises himself on his feet, his body is thrown in every attitude every muscle and nerve being strained to its utmost power. His voice is loud, clear, distinct, commanding. He becomes, to use his own phrase, a man."

Electrical Contractor Gives Advice to Others

"I think Milks Emulsion should be advertised all over the world, so as to help all of the sick."

"In 1912 I had a great deal of trouble with my stomach and bowels. For several years I tried everything that I saw advertised, but I kept getting worse all the time. I got so bad that I was in bed for three months in 1916. While in Philadelphia in 1917 I happened to see one of your ads. I had tried everything that I thought was any good, but concluded to give Milks Emulsion a trial. It could not do any worse than the rest."

"To my surprise it regulated my bowels and I found I did not suffer any more after eating and had no pain at all. I continued the use of Milks Emulsion for six months, until I was in fine health and have been for the past eight years. When I think of the way I suffered night and day for six years, I feel that every person with stomach and bowel trouble should know about Milks Emulsion." Yours truly, S. B. ## Elephant or Tractor, Question in Africa

In the Congo river basin of Africa, where the soil is perhaps as rich as anywhere else in the world, there is a merry rivalry between American tractors and elephants as motive power on the farms. The big beast driven by a mahout for a salary of 24 cents a day can turn the sod of one and a quarter acres. Outside of a little salt the elephant can find his own feed. It is not bothered by the tsetse fly, so fatal to other domestic animals.

A tractor is figured to be 14 times more costly to run. But its initial cost is about $400 to the elephant's $2,400, and it can turn the sod of 25 or more acres in a day. So each has its advantages. After nearly 50 years of experiment there are available in the region only 24 elephants sufficiently trained for use on the farms.

Latest Toad Story

Mrs. Sarah Chaloupkas, of Wyoming, Iowa, is telling a toad story. Her toad, a tree toad, she says, croaks though it has been imbedded in the concrete basement wall of her home 11 years. The toad was not heard until a year after the house was built, and is silent in the winter, but through the spring, summer and fall it is noisy. Three years ago, according to Mrs. Chaloupkas, the toad was silent and she thought it was dead, but a few days later she heard it again and today it is croaking as merrily as ever.

The average man holds the key to the future because there are so many of him.—Charles R. Brown, dean of the Yale Divinity school.

The county fair season of 1928 ended with the first presentation of the Jackson county fair at Ava, October 19 and 20. This fair, a recent addition to the list, qualifies for participation in state funds for the support of county and agricultural fairs by virtue of the fact that no other county fair is held in Jackson county. "Friends of agriculture in that section," Director Stanard, of the state department of agriculture, explains, "have fulfilled requirements of the law, and the state extends its aid to officials of the fair at Ava." The Ava fair is strictly an agricultural exposition, and in this, its initial year, it has obtained a complete presentation of the educational exhibits the state department of agriculture presents at agricultural gatherings. At Sycamore, a midwinter fair is held in February. The others are conducted between the middle of July and the first weeks in October.

The 1929 convention of the Illinois State Dairymen's association will be held in Jacksonville, January 22, 23 and 24, according to an announcement issued by the secretary of that organization, Stillman J. Stanard, director of agriculture. Planning future activity for this association, its board of directors, in session at Springfield during the state fair, appointed a committee to work up local branches of the state organization in the leading dairy centers of the state. The team that wins the judging contest in the Jacksonville convention will receive $25 to apply against the expenses of their trip to the National Dairy show to be held in St. Louis during the fall of 1929.

Poultry dealers, licensed in compliance with the act intended to reduce thefts, according to the records maintained by the state department of agriculture, are making applications for their license renewals promptly. The number licensed since July 1 to date, now about 4,000, is approximately twice as many as were licensed at this date last season, the first year the act was in effect. The records which licensed dealers are required to keep have been the cause of sundry arrests and convictions of poultry thieves, and in that it limits the opportunities for marketing stolen property, the law is considered as a protection to the farmers.

Two-thirds of the farms of Illinois are equipped with cream separators, according to the farm equipment survey issued jointly by the Illinois and federal departments of agriculture and the farm mechanics department of the University of Illinois. This survey bases its relation of equipment to the number of farms upon the federal farm census of 1924, which shows a total of 225,597 farms in Illinois. From some 2,500 sources of information, answers to some fifty questions have been compiled. The information is gathered and arranged by nine geographic districts, and consolidated into one report of the entire state.

Judge Charles G. Briggie gave his first ruling recently in the test case involving the recovery of gasoline tax collected under the invalid statute of 1927, when he held against the cross bill of the state. Judge Briggie held that the individuals from whom the tax was collected are without remedy and therefore the cross bill which sought to require oil companies to make an accounting of the sources from which they derived the tax was not necessary. The total amount of money collected by the state under the invalid law is $6,300,000. The heaviest claimant is the Standard Oil company which claims about one-third of the total.

The plant industry division of the state department of agriculture reports the selection of watermelon seed from 151 melons in a recent step in its development of a wilt-resistant watermelon that meets market requirements.

Bids were received a few days ago by State Architect William Lindstrom for the construction of a power plant at the St. Charles Home for Boys. The bids will be considered and awards made in a short time.

Rumors that an effort is being made to have the army aviation school, known as the Air Corps Technical school, of Chanute field at Rantoul, removed to Dayton, Ohio, brought opposing action from a number of places in Illinois a few days ago. Congressman Fred A. Britten, Chicago, has written to Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis asking that the house committee on military affairs investigate the matter before any action is taken. W. H. Wheat, Rantoul banker, who with the late Senator William B. McKinley, Champaign, was active in securing the establishment of the post in 1917, appeared in Chicago and conferred with heads of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, the Chicago Hotel Managers' association, and two banks. All sent protests to Washington. The removal of the field, which originally cost millions of dollars, to Dayton is considered an uneconomic and impractical move for the government to make. The removal of the field would also mean the loss of an annual pay roll totaling more than one million dollars, most of which is spent in Illinois.

September was a cool month, with excessive sunshine and generally deficient rainfall, Clarence J. Root, United States meteorologist, reported a few days ago in his monthly resume of Illinois weather conditions. The absolute minimum temperature was lower in 1899 only. At eight of the more southern stations the precipitation was the least on record for September; at Chester and Shawneetown it was the least for any month, and at Carbondale the latter record was equaled. The frost finished garden truck, and the foliage of late corn was killed. Some ears were damaged, but the aggregate amount was small because they were mostly matured. Some uncut cowpeas and soy beans were killed. The weather was favorable for sowing winter wheat, but in the extreme southern areas the ground was too hard for working because of the drought.

Illinois' official ballot for the general election November 6 was certified to the 102 county clerks of the state a few days ago by Secretary of State Emmerson. The ticket was completed at a much earlier date than usual and records were broken in forwarding them in order that clerks may have ample time for the printing. The ticket includes the names of state and district candidates to which the county ballot will be added by the county clerks. The ballot is much shorter than at former Presidential elections because the names of the 29 Presidential electors are eliminated under the provisions of an act of the last session of the general assembly. The names of candidates for President and Vice President are printed on the ballot, each in brackets with a square on the left.

The Illinois Valley Flood Control commission, in session in the Capital city recently, gathered information relative to a reservoir project Springfield hopes to construct as a factor in flood control. Engineers engaged in preliminary surveys for Springfield, to outline plans for the proposed lake, consider one lake serving satisfactorily for a city water supply, a recreation center and a flood water retaining basin as only a remote possibility. The flood commission, created only for the purpose of investigating flood causes and remedies, can consider the lake project only from the viewpoint of its potentialities as a flood prevention factor, according to Senator A. S. Cuthbertson, chairman of the commission.

Governor Small, Roy W. Idle, director of the state department of welfare, and others are now on an inspection tour of institutions in New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio. The trip will be made with a view of obtaining ideas of modern charitable institutions in those states preparatory to drafting plans for the new state hospital to be erected in Kankakee county. Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling Rockford, will be acting governor of the state in the absence of Governor Small.

There were fewer marriages and more divorces in Illinois in 1927 than in 1926, it was reported a few days ago by the United States Department of Commerce.

The marriage ceremony was performed 80,222 times in 1927, as compared to 82,529 in 1926, and there were 14,984 divorces, compared to 14,125 in 1926. There were 216 marriages annulled in 1927 and 204 in 1926.

Governor Small has announced the appointment of James S. Hopkins of Aurora as an arbitrator on the Illinois Industrial commission. He is the son of the late Senator Albert Hopkins.

Louis L. Emmerson, Republican nominee for governor, has been re-elected most worshipful grand master of the grand lodge of Masons for the state of Illinois.

With an attendance of more than 300 health workers registered, the conference of the Illinois health officers and public health nurses concluded its most successful meeting a few days ago with the adoption of resolutions praising the state department of public health and Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, state health director, for their part in bringing about the remarkable improvement in health conditions which Illinois has enjoyed during the last seven years, and which it is hoped will continue.

IMPORTANT
UNDERWEIGHT
CHILDREN

"Two Tablespoons of Karo in a Glass of Milk doubles its Food Value!"

THIS statement is made by one of America's greatest child specialists.

"Karo", says this physician, "is not only a delicious sweet, but the ideal food for the underweight child. Karo can be added to the diet without spoiling the appetite for other foods—and it improves the taste of milk."

Karo has a high energy value—there are 120 calories per ounce in it—almost twice the energy value of eggs and lean beef, weight for weight.

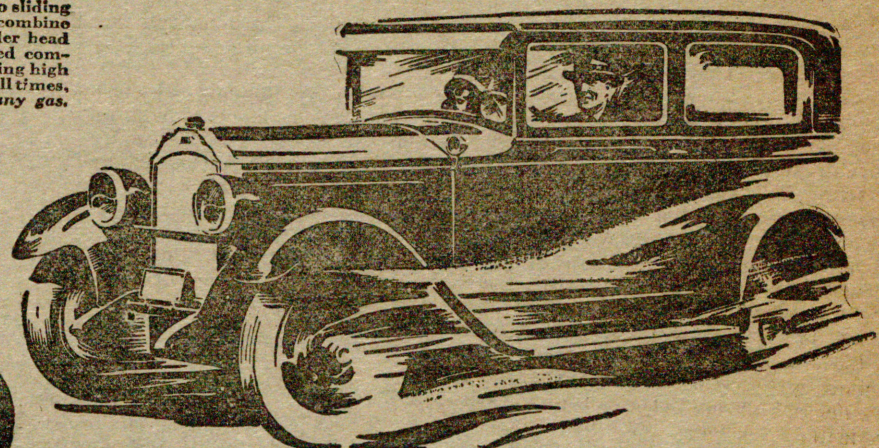

Further—Karo is easily digested—giving children muscular energy immediately.

Serve the kiddies plenty of Karo in milk, on cereals, on sliced bread—and watch their weight improve.

Economy—compare Karo, pound for pound, with the price of other staple foods. Isn't Karo economical?

Sanitary District Candidates

T. J. Crowe

Federal Relations Committee, the Sanitary Board recently placed in operation the world's largest sewage treatment project. It is electrically controlled and leading sanitarians have pronounced it perfect in operation.

for the comfort and health of their respective communities. This embraces the great West Side of Chicago and its suburbs. The progress of these projects has been facilitated by the co-operation of Alderman Ross A. Woodhull, who has expedited the passage of necessary city ordinances involved in the work. Alderman Woodhull is the Democratic Candidate for the vacancy on the Drainage Board.

thus aid in the clarification of Salt Creek and the DesPlaines River. In the general work of sanitation, the Sanitary District has given aid in the matter of mosquito abatement and went a long way in that direction when President Crowe ordered the District Engineers to clean up the DesPlaines River and restore it to its natural state and in furtherance of this project the final contract has been let for the Salt Creek Sewer, an improvement which extends permanent drainage and sewage disposal facilities to nine western suburban communities. This project also redeems a pledge to clean up the DesPlaines River and Salt Creek made by the Democratic Trustees when they were successful candidates six years ago.

Vote "No" On Game Bond Issue

visiting farmers to vote against the new bond issue proposal, to be submitted at the election next month.

This proposal calls for the expenditure of $20,000,000 for purchase of game and fish preserves by the state. It is a measure that was sponsored in the legislature by politicians closely associated with Gov. Len Small and Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago. If the voters approve it, there is an excellent chance that a good deal of the $20,000,000 worth of land which the state decides to buy will turn out by coincidence, of course to be the property of politicians, their sisters or their cousins or their aunts. The price per acre would not be any lower on that account. A hint about the possibilities of political concern for fish and game is given taxpayers, in the recent discovery that the head of the Chicago street sweepers union received a salary from the state of Illinois as a "game warden".

Possibly the time will come when the taxpayers of Illinois will want, and will feel they can afford, to set aside some preserves, in the interests of conservation and the enjoyment of the people. The legislation for any such purpose will need to be carefully drawn, and most carefully scrutinized, to insure that it does not inordinately fatten the politicians behind it. For the present, even the safest and tightest project of this sort represents a luxury that can well wait until some of those already purchased are paid for.

majority. He reviewed the campaign which has been carried into 101 counties of the state outside of Cook County. He said Emmerson is known as "Honest Lou" in his section of the state.

He showed the excellent record Mr. Emmerson has made as secretary of state. The automobile department has shown an increase of 1,131 per cent as compared with 1916. Prior to the administration of Secretary of State Emmerson, the cost of operation was 9½ per cent of the amount collected, while for the fiscal year ending July 1st, 1927, these expenditures amounted to only 3¼ per cent of the amount collected. It costs only 32 cents per license to issue automobile licenses in Illinois. This 32 cents covers the cost of the plates, postage, expressage, clerk hire-in fact everything except rent, light and heat which are furnished by the capitol.

Compared with other states, rate is ridiculously low. Pennsylvania is expending $2.10 for every license issued; Missouri $2.12; New York $1.20; California 98 cents and Wisconsin 85 cents.

Senator Wright hit the record of the Democratic party in Illinois. He stated that when the Democratic administration in 1917 after a four year term, turned over the reins of state government to Deneen, the treasury only showed a balance of $528.82.

John E. Northrup spoke in behalf of John A. Swanson, candidate for states attorney of Cook County. He went into details of the bomb outrages, the racketeering game, murders, etc., which have been prevalent in Chicago for a number of years. He vigorously attacked Judge Lindsay, Democratic candidate for the same office showing that he is assuming a passive attitude toward the crime situation. He cited many cases of outrages. He pointed out that 100 bombs have been hurled in six months, $50,000 property damage has been done and many murders committed.

He showed how powerfully the underworld is entrenched in politics and of the alliance between crime and politics. He said the name of Chicago is a by word the world over and that the election of Judge Swanson will mean the crushing of crime, suppression of commercialized vice and bringing to time of the gangsters.

The Mokena 500 club met at the home of Mrs. Frank A. Tooley Wednesday afternoon. Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Ona McGovney, Mrs. H. Reab and Mrs. F. Cappel. A nice time was enjoyed.

Miss Flora Jackson of Orland is visiting this week in the home of her brother, J. W. Jackson.

An enjoyable meeting was had at the regular P. T. A. Tuesday evening at the school house. After a short business meeting, Miss Edna Keith, supervisor of the elementary grades in the Joliet schools, spoke, dwelling chiefly on the topic of "Habits."

A report was given showing the recent play, "A Poor Married Man" cleared for the P. T. A. about $128. It was also reported a gain in membership of nearly 40 new members, making the total membership 141.

The play, "A Poor Married Man", given by the P. T. A. last Friday, night in St. John church parlors, was very well attended. The players each took their part splendidly, and much mirth was caused by the bad fix the Poor Married Man was in.
